BITES & PIECES

There's something for everyone with these goodies

T is for treats

Tupperware's no-bake T-Bar tray moulds allow you to make your own snacks, desserts and school lunchbox snacks. You just fill the four moulds with your own mixture using the T-Bar plunger, cover and allow to set in the fridge. Use them to make muesli bars or slices with your own ingredients - so you know your children are getting only homemade goodness. Priced at $49.90 for four, they come with a lifetime guarantee. Visit www.tupperware.co.nz.

SIMPLE BREW

Jed's Coffee Co produces great coffee, and now it makes picking the right blend for the perfect brew extra easy with its one, two, three numbering system, indicating strength.

Jed's take care of the hard stuff, like sourcing high-quality beans - all you have to do is brew it.

Priced at $8.29, it's available ground or as beans from Pak'nSave and New World.

Cute as a button

When kids deserve a treat, it can be hard to know what's the right confectionery to pick. But now Milkybar buttons come in small, treated-sized packs that make a perfect indulgence for the littlies. And the white chocolate means their hands don't get covered in melting brown goo. Perfect! They are available in 20g packets from dairies, petrol stations and supermarkets, priced from $1.09.
